College Represented at Commonwealth Universities Conference

College President John E. Robbins and Mrs. Robbins were among the Canadians who journeyed to the United Kingdom this summer to attend the quinquennial conference of the Association of Commonwealth Universities. Mrs. Robbins took this opportunity, too, to spend a few weeks on the continent with their son, Emmet who had a Travelling Fellowship from St. Michael's College, Toronto, to visit classical sites in the Mediterranean area.

The other Brandon College delegate at the Commonwealth conference was Bursar Don MacKay '40. Don has been prevailed upon to "convey in a few well-chosen words" the impressions gained by Gwen (Dobbie) '40 and himself from this outstanding experience:

The question to be answered in two hundred and fifty words or less: "I liked the Ninth Quinquennial Congress of the Universities of the British Commonwealth because . . .". The answer cannot be stated so briefly and give all of the information and impressions gained from our departure date of June 27th by Empress of Canada to return by the same ship August 7th. The Alumni Journal will settle, I hope for a resume of events.

The Congress called for meetings at the University of London, England, between the dates Monday 15th July and Friday 19th July. Plenary sessions were held with some choices between the subjects: "The Diversity of Universities of the Commonwealth," "Significant University Developments in the Commonwealth, 1958-63: United Kingdom" and "Significant University Developments in the Commonwealth 1958-63: Nigeria" Group discussions were held on the following subjects: "The Place of the Layman in University Government," "The University Student" and "Co-operation Among Universities of the Commonwealth"

Social functions included: A Royal Garden Party for the Congress, receptions by the University of London and by Her Majesty's Government; a Congress Dinner; and a reception by the Lord Mayor of London and the "Twelve Great Companies." Concurrent with these were sessions, discussions, a Ladies' Programme and an opportunity to see the Bolshoi Ballet and other London shows and night spots

Before, during and after the Congress visits were made to United Kingdom universities as their guests. Our schedule included University of Southampton where we saw a university that had grown from College to University in a few short years, much like our own Brandon College! Side-trips to such places as Stonehenge and other points of interest were arranged by our hosts. Other universities visited were Cambridge, Imperial College, London, Aberdeen, Glasgow and Belfast. Not only did we have the opportunity of seeing the universities, but we also enjoyed hospitality that beggars description. Watching the punting on the "Cam" to dancing to the bagpipes were matched by sight seeing in Northern Ireland and London.

The second half of this century is going through a second renaissance of learning and, in so doing, must seem to university boards of governors as if we are "teetering on the verge of financial chaos and bankruptcy." This is the one thing from our wonderful trip we conclude we all have in common.

Superintendent Of Buildings Appointed

As a result of the building expansion taking place at Brandon College, it has become necessary to name a person in charge of building and maintenance supervision. Mr. Thomas C. Smith, a University of Saskatchewan graduate in Mechanical Engineering has been appointed Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds. Mr. Smith comes from Three Rivers, Quebec, where he has been in charge of administration and supervision of two large steam plants for over ten years.

College Receives A.R.D.A. Research Grant

A grant of $4200 has been made to Brandon College for research under the direction of Dr. E. J. Tyler '46, Professor of Psychology. The grant is provided in equal parts by the Federal Government under the provisions of the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act and by the Manitoba Department of Agriculture and Conservation. Purpose of the research will be to examine the movement of population from rural to urban communities in Western Manitoba

Parlez-Vous Francais?

Brandon College halls rang with French conversation, and spirits were high as 36 students and four instructors met for four weeks of intensive Oral French study this July.

Included in the ranks were alumni members Muriel (Bell) Cumming '36, Arlene (White) Day, TTC '57, Gladys Hamilton '41, Marlon Pye '63, Molly (Bell) Vance '35, Bernice (Mustard) Wallace '40 and Nicholas Yarish '56.

Plans are being laid for a more extensive offering next summer, and those interested in entering an oral French course (at elementary or advanced level) are asked to assist by making their interest known to the French Department or the Registrar's Office at the College.

Senior Appointments Made In English, History

Dr. Ralph F. B. King, formerly Head of the English Department at Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, has this year assumed professorship in the Brandon College English Department, in addition to being Associate Dean of Arts at the College. Dr. King's academic history begins with his Bachelor's degree from the University of British Columbia and graduate work at the University of Toronto, followed by lecturing at Royal Military College in Kingston, University College in Toronto and the University of British Columbia.

History professor Charles W. Lightbody, a Saskatchewan Rhodes Scholar, has come to Brandon College from the University of Saskatchewan, Regina campus. Dr. Lightbody's main interest is European history. He is widely known through lectures and broadcasts, and especially for Judgements of Joan, the book which shows how western society has varied and changed over the years in judging Joan of Arc.

Canada-U.S. Foreign Policy Conference Topic

Graduates of the last decade will be interested in knowing that the annual International Relations Conference with Minot State Teachers' College at the International Peace Garden has lost none of its drive. Discussion this year was particularly keen, as Canada-U.S. foreign policies came under scrutiny and was climaxed by the guest speaker, Prof. O. B. Jessness of the University of Minnesota's Agricultural Economics Department, who neatly summed up the effect of the European Common Market on the North American continent.

Good Luck, Tony

World University Service workers and all who have known Tony Chow of Kowloon, Hong Kong, have felt satisfaction tempered with sadness in seeing Tony enrol this year in the Faculty of Medicine at the University of Manitoba. During his two years at Brandon College as a W.U.S. scholar, Tony showed academic prowess and student leadership that will not be forgotten, especially since he edited and radically improved the format of the now-weekly 'Quill'.

Branch Meetings

The Ottawa chapter of the Brandon College Alumni Association is planning a get-together for the evening of Thursday, October 17 when Dr. and Mrs. Robbins will be their guests. Anyone interested should contact Walter Dinsdale '37. — All graduates and former students are welcome.

Elections held at the May meeting of the Calgary branch named Ernie Shaw '51 as the 1963-64 president of the group. Vice-President is John McArthur '57, secretary is Irish (Schoch) Pryce '50 and treasurer is Neil McKellar '52.

YEA, '38!

Noon luncheon on Saturday, May 25 saw a small but spirited group from Class '38 renewing acquaintances. Present for the reunion were:

Doug Bollman from Virden; Dorothy (Butler) Lepine from Hamiota; Margaret A. MacKenzie from Winnipeg; Ed and Mary (Murray) McTavish from Lethbridge, Alberta; Agnes (Mills) Groome from Regina; Ada Wareham from Rivers; Beatrice (Wickett) Saunderson from Souris; and Mary (White) Kinney from Brookdale.

The luncheon was followed by a campus tour, visit with former faculty and friends at the home of Isabelle Mills, the evening banquet and a get-together at Bea Saunderson's home in Souris.

Graduate Honoured

George T. Eaton '32, Assistant Superintendent in the Research Laboratory of the Eastman Kodak Company in Rochester, N.Y., has been awarded a Senior Membership in the Society of Photographic Scientists and Engineers, in recognition of his services as president of this national organization during the first four years of its existence. This same Society awarded Mr. Eaton a Fellowship in 1963. He is also a Fellow of the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers and the Photographic Society of America.

Congratulations, Dr. Gordon!

Dr. and Mrs. Archie Gordon of Calgary write of their 'jubilee' year, as they celebrated graduation, ordination, marriage and the beginning of their missionary work in India—all events of 1913. Dr. and Mrs. Gordon spent ten weeks overseas, then enjoyed a Golden Wedding celebration with over 500 guests in Calgary. In their honour, the Baptist Church has set up a scholarship for Indian Seminary students.

British Libraries

By EILEEN M. McFADDEN '53
Librarian Brandon College

This past spring I had the honour of being invited by the British Council to spend six weeks in Great Britain as their guest, to observe the organization and operation of British libraries.

The tour included all types of libraries devoted to general education, including public and county libraries. Any description of the British library system must start with a brief reference to the system of education.

The British system starts with the primary school for children aged five to seven years. This is followed by the junior school, and then the "eleven plus" examination. Next, the student is directed into a course of studies deemed suitable for his abilities and aptitudes. The course leading to university entrance is offered in the grammar schools. Courses oriented toward general education are offered in the secondary modern schools, and those oriented toward trade-type technical courses in the technical colleges. On the higher-education level there are two distinct types of institutions: the universities accepting only those students with a high academic standing, and emphasizing the humanities and social science, the colleges of advanced technology.

But where do libraries fit into this structure?

Virtually every person in England and Scotland has access to a tax-supported library. For the most part, these libraries are organized on a broad population basis, even in rural areas. Systems for facilitating cooperation between libraries are well developed.

The practice of planned subject specialization and inter-library lending between libraries in specific regions has developed more fully than is generally common in North America. The public libraries in British cities have first reference collections and excellent resources for recreational reading.

The British public uses libraries the way we use supermarkets. Mother or father goes to the library to bring home the weekly supply of books, just as we bring home groceries. Holborn, the business district of London, has an excellent children's collection—the business men come at lunch time to get the latest "Noddy" book for junior. Several libraries have Telex facilities. Communication between major libraries in Edinburgh and London is a matter of typing out a message and waiting a minute or two for a reply.

Each level of education has library facilities devoted to its own needs. The universities in many cases have great collections; however, lack of money tends to hamper some of them in their attempts to organize their collections effectively. Library service to the professional courses in technology are, perhaps, more limited than in this country because students in these courses do not have as direct access to the university libraries as do Canadian students in similar fields. School library development is somewhat comparable to that in similar institutions in Canada. The all-inclusive pupil-teacher library system of the London County Council Education Committee, and the measures practiced by several counties designed to introduce small children to libraries, might warrant close study in Canadian educational circles.

The timetable drawn up by the British Council enabled me to see many tourist attractions, to meet friends and relatives and, in general, to have the time of my life. I consider myself very fortunate, and feel that the broadening experience will be very helpful in my work.
